

Going to the Park

A Social Story

The James Project: Autism Tools & Learning

Sometimes I go to the park.
The park is a place where children play.

At the park I might see swings, slides, and other children.

I may need to wait if someone else is using the equipment.

I can take turns and play safely.

If the park feels too busy or loud, I can take a break with my grown-up.

When it is time to leave, my grown-up will tell me.

Leaving the park can feel hard, but we can come back another day.
Great job going to the park!
